Title: Fight Tenancy Abuse 2021 – Non-occupation & Subletting

- Super: Cherish Public Housing Resources
- Housing Abuser A: I won't return the flat to the Housing Department though I've moved out. It's cool to come back and relax any time as I like.
- Super: Leaving the flat unoccupied is a waste of resources
- Housing Abuser B: Subletting my public housing flat can earn me some money or do a favour to relatives or friends. Isn't it great?
- Super: Subletting a public housing flat breaches the Tenancy Agreement
- Houser Protector: That's outrageous! I still remember the day when our family finally moved into a public housing flat after waiting for such a long time ...
- Cute Housing Protector: This place is lovely!
- Housing Protector: On that day, I determined to cherish this home. I was then endowed with the power of justice to become the Housing Protector and I vowed to protect public housing resources.
- Housing Protector: Public housing resources are precious. They should be allocated appropriately and rationally to those in genuine need. It's a breach of the Tenancy Agreement if you leave the flat unoccupied or sublet it. Once the case is confirmed, the Housing Department will terminate your tenancy and recover your flat.
- Housing Protector: Abusing public housing resources is a selfish act.

Punishment is unquestionable!
