

WAY FORWARD

70. The Authority and the Department are fully committed to improving the built quality of the public housing. Since we launched the Quality Reform, we have made good progress and we have taken proactive actions in obtaining feedback from other stakeholders in striving for continuous improvement. With most of the quality measures progressively launched, our focus will be on reviewing the effectiveness of the quality measures and monitoring their financial effects to the projects to ensure value for money.

71. Looking ahead, with the wider use of non-standard designs adopting site specific approach in our projects, we will continue to work closely with other stakeholders to further enhance the buildability of our non-standard designs in striving for quality, sustainability and cost effectiveness of our housing developments. To this effect, we need to adopt a more integrated project delivery method, conduct more research and review our specifications. To meet these new challenges, we will explore alternative procurement strategies and delivery mode to ensure the best utilization of site potentials and best value to our customers.
