Safety Reminder: Work Safety for Property Management at Construction Sites Immediately Before and After Public Holidays

Date: 30 November 2009

Our Ref. : HD(C)TS 4/49/26

The days immediately before and after Public Holidays are usually the busiest time for most trades. According to an analysis of occupational accidents involving serious consequences, these days are also highly accident-prone in most trades. In view of this, contractors, sub-contractors and service providers should all stay alert, put in place appropriate safety measures and monitor the effectiveness of such measures with a view to ensuring work safety during the above periods.

The Occupational Safety and Health Council prepares publications such as booklets and posters on the subject for distribution free of charge to various organisations in order to heighten awareness of work safety immediately before and after Public Holidays.
